NOTE ON NEUTRALITY

Probably the best time to legislate against war is immediately after the end of a war. That's when nations are most eager to stay out of trouble.Unfortunately, the United States waited until a pre-war period to begin establishing policy of neutrality. As a result, its efforts are being conducted in an atmosphere of hard reality, instead of in an atmosphere of passionate hatred for war and all its evils.The principal substance of that hard reality is commerce. It is generally agreed these days that the economic motive of war is the real problem in averting war and in staying out of it when it can't be averted. Consequently, the economic problem is the principal obstacle encountered in any attempt to form a satisfactory formula of neutrality.A great many persons in the United States who undoubtedly were bitterly opposed after the World war to anything which might have tangled the United States in another foreign war now are being obliged to take a more sympathetic and, incidentally, a more realistic viewpoint. Why?Because the U. S. department of commerce report shows that exports last month reached $269,400,000, compared with $194,712,000 in November a year ago.
Sharp gains occurred in manufactured and unmanu-factured cotton, automobiles and petroleum products.
The gains can be traced in large part to the Italo-Ethiopian war. Exports to Italian Africa, for instance, were $583,735, compared with $17,971 the preceding year.Laws to the contrary notwithstanding, the United States is going after and getting the additional business which is being caused by the war in Africa.
When congress begins to work on neutrality legislation next month its labor will be complicated by the natural desire of businessmen to turn an honest dollar. No doubt they will point out that Uncle Sam is dealing with a condition and not a theory. That's unusually a pretty convincing phrase.

THE FUN OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas is almost over, yet Christmas doesn't take place till Dec. 25. But the fun of Christmas, which is the preparation, has been going on for weeks.Christmas is the housecleaning and decorating, the planning and the extra work which go into the making of the country's most joyous holiday. It is the searching for exactly the right gift and the anticipation of somebody's pleasure at receiving it.It is the Christmas wreath hung on the door, the decorations for the Christmas tree, the arrangements for Christmas dinner and the wide-eyed excitement of children. It is the crowds in the stores and the quickening of the tempo of living during the holidays.Christmas is the wish that everybody may be made a little happier by remembrance at least once a year.
It is the impulse to share and to make sacrifices, not in a spirit of humility but in a spirit of happy generosity. It is the urge to live for a little while as men should live the year 'round, but rarely do.It is Christmas for only a few hours, if one looks at the calendar and not at the swirl of activity which lasts all through the month of December.
The calendar Christmas, however satisfactory it may be as a period of 24 hours, is only the climax of the real Christmas, which lasts from the time the first preparations are begun until the last "Merry Christmas" has been spoken and the country settles down again to a more placid way of living.Christmas isn't here yet, but it is at least half gone. In the next few hours all the preparations will be finished, leaving only the day itself to be enjoyed. Then, perhaps, it will be plain that it could have been before that the fun of Christmas is really the preparation—the anticipation and not the realization.The resignation of numerous policemen is the first step in New York's drive on crime. Nothing was ever done about our suggestion to retire the underworld on half-pay.—Detroit News.You can buy a buffalo from the department of agriculture for $40. But maybe you would prefer a slab of bacon.—Troy Record.

THE STARS SAY

For Tuesday, December 24

According to the lunar and mutual aspects, this day is likely to be a very exciting and eventful one,
with much in the way of friendship and social activity. An important change seems imminent, this having a far-reaching effect on conditions. It might be advisable to keep a curb on exciting situations, as hasty and reckless doings might prove detrimental to this good fortune. Be careful with strangers.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of great change, having an important, if not radical, bearing on the future life and fortunes. It may be a year of much excitement and commotion, all favorable if not too recklessly embraced. Be careful with strangers and of secret machinations.A child born on this day may be versatile, ingenious and skillful in unusual lines. It is destined to rise to high place in the public eye.

Notable nativity: Kit Carson, pioneer and scout.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 23—Diary: Up and pressing my nose to the pane watched a skitter of snow, my head swimming with brave thoughts. So abroad and scoured the shops for a deep purple muffler like I once saw Seymour Hicks wear. And had a tier of butter-cakes at a Childs with Gil Patten.Home and a whooping Paris-by-gaslight cable from Gilbert White. Then working and sorting books for the Ohio house. And a note from Cole Porter about something on which we are in high accord. Also a scribble from the wandering Frazier Hunts in Potsdam.We to dinner with Katharine Brush and her lovely mother and Bob Winans. Afterward by the Gotham to sit awhile with Betty Rogers. And going home a fellow over my shoulder growled "Listen you, how about a quarter!" And the street being dark and deserted I shelled out in a jiffy.New York's best known model is Frank B. Wilson, who has been posing more than 40 years, working for all the well-knowns and helping many beginners with his intelligent understanding. He is the original of innumerable fiction characters—the Sherlock Holmes for Frederick Dorr Steele, the Blackie Daw and Get Rich Quick Wallingford for Charles E. Chambers, and for 18 years has been the celebrated Mr. Tutt for Arthur William Brown. Wilson is now in his 60's and a year ago a gangrenous infection cost him a leg above the knee. Without an artificial limb, work was impossible in his line. So an artist for whom he had worked started "The Wilson Foundation" and the mechanical leg was secured by donations. He now moves about with the spryness of Herbert Marshall.Personal nomination for the deffest of the fancy word jugglers since William C. Brann—Ben De Casseres.The New York Enquirer, the only Sunday afternoon paper printed in America is conducted by six Griffin brothers, all natives of Wheaton, Ill., which gave the world Red Grange. The solo owner of the stock is William, who came to town in 1925 and launched the sheet, his brothers—Marcus, John, Alexis, Gerald and Norbert—coming along one at a time. They are all pals as well as brothers and probably one of the happiest newspaper families anywhere.Ernest Hemingway's boon companion on recent New York explorations was Ben Finney, a survivor of that glossy guild tagged men-about-town. A South-erner, Finney has for years been a citizen of the world, at home promenading the Shanghai Bund or surf bathing at Pago Pago. And is even better known in such nearer capitals as London, Berlin and Paris.
At times he hawks down yonder hams, a new brand of coffee or ruins one of the Saturday night celebrity dances. But the main business is to live robustly and for the day.On the margin torn from a Paradise restaurant menu someone singing "Old Rounder" sends this scrawled simile: "His confidence in women was as pathetic as a sailor home from a three years' cruise."I've watched the click of a pert drug store in the neighborhood, the sort called a chemist's shop with window displays such as a single bar of $2 jet black soap nestling in a billowy swirl of white satin. The manager is a sleek young modern careerist who has mastered a neat trick. On second visit he calls one by name. New York loves that.Bagatelles: Major Bowes was planning to retire when his new professional career on the radio opened ... Babe Ruth often eats three ice cream sodas in a row ... Mussolini calls Floyd Gibbons "Gibby"
... A trained police dog is always on guard at C. M.
Schwab's Drive mansion ... Phil Simms went to Paris on his honeymoon and remained for nine years
... Earl Carroll always dresses up and makes old fashioned formal New Year calls.He is one of those starched fussbudgets spending much time straightening out things that do not concern him. At a Ritz entrance he walked up to a chic looking Carole Lombard number puffing away while waiting her car. "Poisoning the air and your body," he snorted. She eyed him coldly. A grandly uniformed started edged up. "And you," shouted the fuss budget, "with your fancy gee gaws!"

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

SLEEPING SICKNESS

ENCEPHALITIS, OFTEN referred to as sleeping sickness, is a rare but serious affliction. The disease is called "sleeping sickness" because

Dr. Copeland

As a rule the disease appears in epidemic form, attacking over a wide front. The last epidemic of importance was that in St. Louis in 1933.Recent epidemics have been made up of mild cases. This is fortunate, because as yet there is no specific or worth-while treatment, not any known means of prevention. Our only means of protection at present is to keep the victim of encephalitis away from others and to act immediately upon recognition of the infection.In its early stages the disease may be confused with influenza, typhoid fever, malaria, or tuberculosis of thecentral nervous system. In children the affliction is sometimes mistaken for infantile paralysis, meningitis, or some other form of encephalitis.During the recent epidemic in St.
Louis it was often impossible to make an accurate diagnosis until the patient was subjected to numerous laboratory tests. Such symptoms as fever, nausea, headache,
stiff neck or stiffness of the spine,
should arouse suspicion of encephalitis.

Examine Spinal Fluid

To confirm the diagnosis the doctor will make examination of the spinal fluid. This fluid is obtained by puncturing the spinal canal. It sounds rather terrible, but really it is a simple procedure. This if often made use of to detect other nervous afflictions, such as infantile paralysis, tuberculosis of the nervous system and meningitis.In sleeping sickness the spinal fluid is found to be under increased pressure. It is clear, but shows a marked increase in its content of pus cells.Until discovery is made of the actual cause of encephalitis, our only weapons of defense against the disease are cleanliness, good hygiene and strict quarantine of all suspected cases. Victims of this infection are best cared for at a hospital. Here they will receive constant medical and nursing care. In addition, it is easier to maintain the quarantine.

Sues to Establish Parentage

Robert E. Thomas is suing in New York court for a share in a $2,000,000 estate, declaring that he has just learned that he is son of May Yoho, oft-married stage favorite of yesteryear. He alleges that the then world famous actress bore him secretly after her estrangement from her second husband, Putnam Strong, and allowed E. R. Thomas of Los Angeles to adopt him. Thomas and latest photo of Miss Yoho, who lives in Boston, are shown.

Judge, William Crawley and Mary Christians. The picture represents a night club where Brissan, as the "singing stoker", gets a job as the bouncer. From this position he rises to the singing entertainer, making the restaurant the rendezvous of society. Success brings him many problems, all of them comic in this gay film. The annual free show for children of Salem will be given at 10 a. m. Tuesday at the Grand.

THRILLS AWAIT MOVIE PLAYERS

Hollywood Astrologer Eyes Stars and Makes Predictions

Norvell, who in February, 1934, predicted a "conflict between a large and small nation somewhere in Africa," said the Italo-Ethiopian war is certain to involve other countries. The United States, he said, would not be involved.

"But the conditions of war remain for four years," he continued, "and 1940 will see this country facing a historic crisis in a short, deadly conflict."

Japan and Russia will go to war next year, he said.

The soldiers' bonus will not be paid, and a government-devised substitute will spell the end of the four-year plan agitation, in his forecasts.

Returning to the movie scene, he predicted disasters in health for John Barrymore and Fred Astaire.

warned Norma Shearer of an airplane accident involving herself or a member of her family, and Ann Harding "is about to meet the great dark crisis of her life."

President Roosevelt will be re-elected by a "startling majority," he said, adding, "he must beware of danger to his life, in 1936, because, like all of the assassinated presidents, Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, he was born under the sign of quarius. The sign now is about to be afflicted by Uranus."

No Alliance Mat Show for 2 Weeks

Promoters of the weekly wrestling shows which have been held every Wednesday night at the Trianon in Alliance announced today that there will be no mat program during the next two weeks.

The card was cancelled because of the next two Wednesdays being Christmas and New Years, respectively, officials said.

Positive announcement on future shows will be made at a later date.

Nurses' Chief Is Hostess at Supper Fete

Doctors of the Salem City hospital and their wives, were guests of Miss Esther Wilson, superintendent of the hospital, and her staff last evening at a delightful buffet supper at the nurses home. The supper, from 4 to 6:30 p. m., was served to about 30 guests, several of whom were from Cleveland and Lisbon. The tables were beautifully appointed and Christmas decorations were used throughout the home. The large table had a center decoration of pines, evergreens and red berries in a basket tied with a large red ribbon. Lighting the table were tall red tapers. The home was made attractive with holly wreaths and a large Christmas tree illuminated with blue lights. The supper was served by the student nurses of the hospital. During the evening following the supper Miss Mary Louise Tracy, instructor of nurses, and the students sang Christmas carols.

Christmas Party at Ullitny Home

Mrs. Michael Ullitny entertained a group of girls at her home on Euclid st., Thursday evening at a delightful Christmas party. A chicken dinner was served at 7 p. m. Table decorations were appropriate to the holiday season.

A Christmas box, dancing and social time were features of the evening. Soiree dances were given by Mrs. Ullitny and Miss Arvela Baskley and Mrs. Bertha Jeffries sang several selections.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. John Volpe and Mrs. Donald Vignone of Washingtonville and Miss Florence Gibbs of Leetonia. Other guests included Miss Baskley, Mrs. Bertha Jeffries, Miss Anne and Stephanie Handlick and Mrs. Martin Welsh of Salem.

New Garden Club Is Entertained

Mrs. Roy Sanor entertained associates of the New Garden Merry Matrons club Thursday afternoon at her home, with Mrs. Vera Drotleff of Salem, Mrs. Hazel Hiscoc of near Lisbon and Mrs. Helen Schmitt of Minerva as guests. Games and contests were enjoyed with the prizes going to Mrs. and Mrs. Lucella Baker. An oyster coverdish dinner was served at noon followed by a Christmas gift exchange.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 2 at the home of Mrs. John Kibler.

Mrs. Mary Hoopes Is Hostess

Mrs. Mary Hoopes of the Georgetown rd., entertained members of the Sunshine society Thursday at her home. The meeting was an all-day social session and the members enjoyed a coverdish dinner at noon. Miss Pauline Willis presided at the dinner. After the dinner a gift exchange was a feature. Mrs. Hoopes led the scripture lesson and the group sang Christmas carols.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Meier on the Georgetown rd. on Jan. 15.

Gas Company Aids Hold Yule Fete

Employees of the National Gas Co. and their families were entertained Saturday night at a Christmas party given by the company's safety club at the K. of P. hall.

A large lighted Christmas tree and other seasonal decorations made the hall attractive and "Santa Claus" distributed gifts to all the guests. Dancing was enjoyed from 9 to 12. Cards entertained guests who did not care to dance. The committee in charge served a lunch later in the evening.

Miss Virginia White of Washington, D. C., who is visiting her cousin, Richard Chamberlain, of North Union ave., attended the Sigma Chi dance at Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., Friday evening as the guest of Mr. Chamberlain, who is a student at the university.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gibb of Damascus were guests over Sunday of Mrs. Gibb's sister, Mrs. B. F. Mullett in Williamsfield. Mr. Gibb returned home last night but Mrs. Gibb will remain over Christmas with her sister and family.

Mrs. Harry Houser and daughter, Mary Gretchen of Buffalo, N. Y., are guests at the home of Mrs. Houser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Smith on East Third st. for the holidays.

Mrs. Mattie Read of East Third st., has gone to Pittsburgh where she will spend the holidays with her sons and families, William and Edgar Read.

Miss Elizabeth Pausch of Columbus will visit with Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Ziegler of South Union ave., over the holidays.

Dorothy Arnold Still Sought

Twenty-five years ago this month, on Dec. 12, 1910, an attractive 26-year-old heiress parted from a friend on a New York street corner and has never been seen again. Despite exhaustive searches carried on in many countries, no clue has ever been uncovered as to the fate of Dorothy Arnold, prominent socialite and daughter of a wealthy New England family. Morgues, hospitals and prisons were searched. Thousands of dollars were spent on an international hunt but she is still listed as an unsolved case on the file of New York's Bureau of Missing Persons where two other famous cases, those of Justice Joseph Crater and Agnes Tufverson, still await solution. The fate of all three has remained shrouded in mystery. Hundreds of clues have been tracked down without success. It is doubtful if even time will reveal their fate and relatives of all three have long given up hope that they are alive.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

THE HOLIDAY dinner menu has become more or less standardized, and so it isn't necessary to offer specimen menus. Most of us have become astute dieticians and we manage to offset the heavier fare so that the meal is not too rich and indigestible.

The noble bird doesn't have to be turkey to be noble. Indeed, many families swear by roast goose, declaring it the grandest of all Christmas fare. For something extra special, try roast goose with a celery stuffing. Combine three and one-half cups soft bread crumbs with one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon each of sage and pepper, one-eighth of a teaspoon of thyme and a dash of majoram. Add four tablespoons melted butter, tossing with fork, then add two-thirds of a cup of hot milk and three-quarters of a cup of celery finely cut. Mix lightly.

As we are dealing with stuffings, we'll answer again the many requests for a really good chestnut stuffing, one that we have used with great success. You will need two pounds of chestnuts which will yield about three cups when shelled. Make a gash in each chestnut with a knife. Place in pan in hot oven (450 F.) for ten minutes or until shells and skins can be easily removed. Shell, remove skins and cook gently in enough boiling, salted water to cover for 20 minutes. Drain and chop fine and add one cup cracker crumbs, four tablespoons melted butter, one-quarter cup cream, three-quarter teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper. Mix all very well.

Plum Pudding Recipe

Although there are scores of recipes for plum pudding, another one is always wanted. So here's our contribution, and a very nice one it is, too, even if we do say so. Mix the Republican national convention in Cleveland next June.

Under the plans of the Republican state central committee, the delegation will be unopposed, a "favorite son" body of 52 with no strings attached. The committee sought to avoid a primary fight for delegates.

Another political development watched closely the G. O. P. in Ohio is the scheduled appearance here Dec. 27 of another possible nominee—Col. Frank Knox, editor of the Chicago Daily News.
Col. Knox will speak before the annual dinner of the Ohio Republican Editorial association.

Colony Lindbergh is known to hold the opinion that there is greater respect for law and order in England than in his native country where his own experience with kidnappers has been so tragic.
Ever since the birth of Jon in August, 1932, six months after the kidnapping of the first born child, it has been necessary to provide bodyguards for the infant and to surround his movements with utmost secrecy.

Since coming into world prominence after his New York to Paris flight in 1932, the formerly unknown "Slim" Lindbergh, air mail pilot, has constantly sought for a return of some semblance of the anonymity that was previously his.
Unlike most other celebrated figures of his day, Lindbergh has attempted to avoid public notice. The kidnap-murder of his child was a tragedy that lifted his name again into black headlines and made it once more a matter of daily conversation throughout the country.

Dream Home Deserted
The "dream home" at Hopewell, N. J., has been deserted almost since the spring days of 1932 when police, detectives and federal agents were there seeking clues to the crime committed in the little upstairs nursery.
Reminder as it was of a great tragedy, the house was no longer desirable to the Lindberghs as a home. The Colonel's counsel later announced that the estate was being given over as a center for child welfare work, and was to be known as "Highfield." Details of the property transfer, however, were not disclosed. Nothing has yet been done, and the estate remains untenanted.

Since the days of the kidnapping the Lindberghs have made their home at Englewood, N. J., with Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, widow of the late Dwight Morrow. The summers have been spent at the Lindbergh island estate in Maine.

First word of the Lindberghs departure for England was given in a copyrighted story today in the New York Times.

TOLEDO—The sight of a 76-year-old woman trudging behind a pushcart on a cold, rainy day was too much for Police Chief Ward Taylor. He bought her shoes and rubbers.

can sales this year have been sharply ahead of 1934 levels, but an extension of this gain into the coming year is problematical. Takings of both packers and general line cans have been substantially increased, and while the outlook for 1936 points to an even greater demand in the general line division, the consumption of packers' cans is likely to be handicapped by the heavy stocks of canned goods on hand as a result of the large 1935 packs.

In the case of virtually every major food product, canning packs this year have been materially larger than in 1934. For example, it is now estimated that the corn pack will total 21,000,000 cases against 11,269,000 in 1934; peas, 24,600,000 cases as compared with 15,742,000; and tomatoes, 16,000,000 cases against 13,110,000. Other leading products show a similar large gain in canning this year.

Bottle cap sales for food products, pharmaceuticals, cosmetics and other proprietary lines are expected to be the best since 1930. Output of bottle crowns, moreover, is estimated at well in excess of 85,000,000 gross, or more than thirteen percent greater than the 1934 total.

Prospects for well sustained and increased earnings in the container industry warrant the retention of long-term holdings in such stocks as American Can and Continental Can of the metal container group, Owens-Illinois and Hazel-Atlas of the glass container division and Crown Cork and Seal, a leading manufacturer of bottle caps and seals.

ship American Importer, a freighter of 7,600 tons with few facilities for passengers.
Colonel Lindbergh's work as technical advisor to Pan American Airways, officials of that company said today, will be continued, despite his residence abroad.

Attended Every Session
Lindbergh sat in the Flemington courtroom at every session of the sensational Hauptmann trial, and was a star witness against Hauptmann. One phase of the appeal from Hauptmann's conviction was based on this fact, Hauptmann's counsel contending that the presence in court of the New York-to-Paris flier was prejudicial to Hauptmann's interests.

During all the recent developments in Hauptmann's case, including the visit to the death cell by the New Jersey governor, Lindbergh had persistently declined to comment. His testimony at Flemington, delivered calmly in a tense courtroom, was that the voice of the extortionist to whom $50,000 ransom money was paid in a Bronx, N. Y., cemetery was "the voice of Hauptmann."

Mattias Kiesgen
Embarrassment charges were drawn against Mattias Kiesgen, above, Detroit welfare official, following detection of a $24,000 fraud in relief accounts which were blamed on Kiesgen and an accomplice, accused of forging names to unclaimed welfare checks.

duty would be to formulate in detail the British policy for armed resistance in the event Italy attacked any league state because of the sanctions issue.

The appointment, informed sources said, ended any doubt of Britain's intention of turning to Geneva again, after the Fiasco of the Franco-British plan for peace, killed last week, for enforcement of sanctions.

Authoritative sources said Britain would press for extension of the present penalties to include an oil embargo and perhaps other sanctions, as soon as all Mediterranean countries pledged support for Britain in the event of war.

Significance was attached to news
from Paris that the French Atlantic fleet had been ordered to leave Brest next month to cruise West African waters. This would indicate that powerful units of the French navy would be cruising fully manned and equipped, within easy reach of the Mediterranean.

Saxon Lads Nosed Out By Canton, 24-22, In League Contest

Classies Mark Up First Win

Sandermen Are Unable To Hit Basket Consistently

Unable to hit the basket with any amount of consistency Coach Peterson's Saxon cagers went down to defeat for the first time in a season when they were nosed out by Canton, 24-22, at the Memorial building Saturday night in a league game.

Salem Girls Win
The Salem girls quintet, playing their first game of the season, however, was more fortunate, defeating the previously unbeaten Canton lassies, 35-27, in a preliminary contest that was also a league game. The Canton girls had chalked up wins in two games before they tipped the verdict to Salem.

Returning to the court after a week rest, the Sandermen showed the effects of their lay-off. In the first period, they displayed ball handling and constantly opportunities to score by fumbling or poor passing. Salem held a two point lead, 9-7, the close of the opening frame in which Canton cagers had a hard time finding the hoop on the many shots they attempted.

Outscore Salem
The invaders outscored Salem in the second quarter, 5 to 4 and hit the lead of the Sandermen down to one point, 11-10.

During the first half, John Utch, outstanding player of the union team, who had scored 41 points in the first two games he played, was unable to locate the basket but in the third period he found the range and sent the Canton team into the lead 21-16. Trailing five points as they went to the final period the Salem cagers rallied enough to mark up 10 points while they held Canton to three. Play in this quarter of the contest was rougher than any that has been seen at the Memorial building this season.

Adams and Linder Star
With Adams and Linder doing as heavy scoring, the Salem lassies had little trouble in their contest with the Canton girls. Salem led at the end of the first quarter, 7, at the end of the half, 19-11, and at the close of the third period, 15-5.

Adams chalked up 12 points during the game while Linder was the high scorer with 15.

Both Salem boys and girls quintets will entertain teams from Cleveland West in games at the Memorial this Saturday.

WESLEYAN TEAM WINS IN CLASS C LEAGUE GAME

St. Paul, McKinley and Prospect Score Other Wins

Staging a last half rally, the Wesleyan quintet defeated the Baptist cagers, 29-26, in one of the three class C league games at the Memorial building Saturday afternoon.

In other Class C games, the Emmanuel Lutherans went down to defeat at the hands of the Christians, 27-15, and the Columbians won out over the Presbyterians, 13-8.

Outstanding Game
The outstanding game of the afternoon between the Wesleyan and Baptist teams saw the former quintet after being on the short end of a 17-9 score at the half, come back in the final two periods with a spurt that brought 20 points and the victory.

Whitcomb of the Baptists, Krauss of the Christians and Fiani of the Columbians were the leading players during the afternoon games.

The St. Paul, Prospect and McKinley grade school teams won victories in "Mickey McGuire" league games at the Memorial Saturday morning.

St. Paul cagers downed Columbia, 35-12. Prospect won a close contest from Reilly, 14-9, and McKinley gained the verdict over Fourth St., 16-10.

Stars of Yesteryear Absent From Top Ranks In National Loop Batting

Only Three of the 1935 Leaders Were Among the Higher Positions the Previous Season

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The stars of yesteryear were conspicuously absent from the higher positions in the National league batting averages for the 1935 season.

While none of the ten top-ranking regulars were out-and-out rookies, only three made the leading group the previous season. The contrast was just as sharp in the lowered averages of the 1934 pace setters.

The official averages reveal that Floyd (Arky) Vaughan lifted his average from .333 a year ago to win the batting crown with .385, succeeding his team-mate, Paul Waner. The elder of the Waner brothers dropped to twelfth place, his average falling from .362 to .321.

Bill Terry of the Giants, second a year ago at .345 and sixth in 1935 at .340, and John Moore of the Phillies were the only other repeaters in the first ten. Moore retained tenth place among the regulars although his average dropped from .330 to .323.

Notable newcomers to the high group were Hank Leiber of New York and Frank Demaree of Chicago. Leiber was not rated as a "regular" in 1934, playing in only 63 games and batting .241.

Demaree, a member of the Cubs' pennant winning team in 1932, spent the 1934 season with Los Angeles, winning the Pacific Coast league batting crown.

Only seven games are on the books this week, two for Monday night and five Saturday. And in each of the contests the boys will be playing "just for fun." No conference tilts are slated.

Entertains Vanderbilt
Monday night Xavier entertains Vanderbilt at Cincinnati, and Western Reserve is host to Penn. The Christmas spirit will crowd basketball out of the way the next four days, but Saturday the thin-clads will re-open the campaign.

Saturday's games include: Cincinnati at Butler, Harvard at Wittenberg, John Carroll at Penn. Carnegie Tech at Case, and West Virginia at Western Reserve.

A dozen games have been played in the Ohio conference, Denison and Bowling Green have won two each to top the pack, but no more league tilts are scheduled until Jan. 4. The same night Ohio State university will open the Big Ten wars by entertaining Wisconsin, and Miami and Dayton will inaugurate the Buckeye loop campaign in a contest in the Gem city.

Fur Will Fly
After that the fur will fly until March 7, with league contests practically every night except Sundays. Before the curtain is rung down the Ohio conference teams will play 135 league games and the Buckeye 36. Ohio State will play 40 down Big Ten contests.

Asland has had a disastrous pre-holiday season, losing all four starts in Ohio conference play. Marietta, Defiance, Toledo, Case and Baldwin-Wallace have won their lone loop games, while Findlay has won a pair and dropped one. John Carroll has broken even in two starts, while Kent State, Mt. Union, Ohio Northern, Capital, Heidelberg and Kenyon have dropped one each.

CAPETOWN—Capt. John England, Port Captain at Table Bay, is to retire from his post after 43 years of seafaring, 33 years of which have been spent in the South African harbour service.

MALLORY WINS OVER REVOLTA

Posts a 72-Hole Total of 271 for Victory In Nassau Open

NASSAU, Bahamas, Dec. 23.—Touring golfers headed back to Florida today with young Leo Mallory, Norton, Conn., professional holding the big check for the Nassau British Colonial Open tournament.

The 24-year-old former Metropolitan District PGA champion collected $1,000 of the $5,000 prize money yesterday by breezing through the last 18-holes in 67 to post a 72-hole total at 271.

He nosed out Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, who shot a 66 yesterday, by one stroke.

Willie MacFarlane, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., injured one hand while the lead, but scored a 274 total and third prize.

Denny Shute of Chicago, Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, tied for fourth place at 278 strokes.

MacFarlane, who led the field after 54 holes, was two strokes under par when he reached the seventh tee Sunday. As he waited to drive, he picked up a piece of scrap metal and tossed it away.

The jagged edge cut his right hand, and the pain caused the loss of his putting touch. He three-putted the next three greens and finished the second with a 72, four over par.

BASEBALL VETS LEAD YOUTH IN 1935 FIELDING

Youngsters Have High Marks, But Veterans Are On Top

The veterans of the baseball wars had the edge in the annual struggle with youth for National league fielding honors during the 1935 season.

The official records today reveal that while the speedy youngsters compiled many of the highest marks, players who had been piling up experience over a longer stretch gained the leading places on the basis of the full season's play. Taking 100 games as a minimum for a competition for first place, the leaders in the various positions were:

First base—Bill Terry, New York, .996; second base—Billy Herman, Chicago, .964; third base—John Vergez, Philadelphia, .953; shortstop—Bill Jurgens, Chicago, .964; outfield—Mel Ott, New York, .990; catcher—Charles (Gabby) Hartnett, Chicago, .984; pitcher—Hal Schumacher, New York, 1.000.

The leadership in most of the infield positions and behind the plate was open to dispute as the 100-game players were few and far between. At second, for example, Jimmy Jordan of Brooklyn fielded .983 in 46 games and Frankie Frisch, St. Louis manager, .982 in 89 games, both beating out his alternate Burgess Whitehead. Jimmy Bucher of Brooklyn made a .982 mark in 39 games at third.

There was a keen race among the part-time catchers for the highest average. Virgil (Spud) Davis of St. Louis, who alternated with Bill DeConey, made a .992 average against 9901 for Earl Grace of Pittsburgh and 9900 for Frank Hogan of Boston. Davis played in 91 games as compared to Hartnett's 110; Grace in 69 and Hogan in 56.

18 Were Perfect
A total of 18 pitchers had perfect fielding records but Schumacher easily took the lead by handling 103 chances, more than twice as many as his nearest rival, Guy Bush, of Pittsburgh.

Hartnett made a unique record when he copped the place as best fielding catcher for the third year in succession. It was the eleventh year of his long major league career in which he had caught 100 games or more and the sixth in succession. The only other repeater was Terry. Both were among the leading batters of the season as well.

The St. Louis Cardinals edged out New York's Giants for the club fielding leadership by the margin of .97227 to .97220 with the Cubs third at .970. Chicago, however, led in double plays with 163 twin killings with Herman figuring in 109 of them. Cincinnati, and Philadelphia made the only triple plays.

One team record and three individual records were tied while Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh, in making nine putouts in each game of a doubleheader, was credited with establishing a new mark.

The record-equaling feats were by the Phillies in completing six double plays in one game; by Jim Collins, of St. Louis, in handling only one chance at first base in a complete game; by John C. (Biondy) Ryan of Philadelphia in participating in five twin-killings out of the six the Phils made; and by Lou Chiozza of the same club in handling eleven assists at second base.

CHAPTER XX
Force of habit made Helen waken at seven. For the first few days she was startled to see Walter lying beside her, his thick hair tousled, his face half buried in the pillow and one of his arms holding her tightly. He never relaxed his hold upon her even in sleep as if he were afraid she might be snatched away from him. Helen, who had always slept alone, was uncomfortable at first in this caged-in position but she forced herself to be perfectly still so as not to disturb him. But after a few nights she curled up in his enveloping arm and found therein a peace and contentment such as she had never dreamed of in her life before.

Once awake, Helen was unable to fall asleep again but spent the few minutes until he opened his eyes in luxurious contemplation of the charming room, the discreetly drawn curtains that fluttered in the open window and the never-ceasing roar of the city. The bedroom was tall and faintly blue in the morning light. Walter's trousers neatly folded over a chair, his long, black shoes standing side by side, with her gray kid pumps spoke volumes to her of delightful intimacies. She pressed against him and he awoke.

Watching him dress and shave his efficient, brisk movements were a source of constant delight to Helen. Of course, he insisted on kissing her when his face was lathered with shaving soap. They had already timed his dressing so that when he finished shaving she arose and got under the shower. By the time he fastened his collar and adjusted his tie, Helen, fresh and rosy in a blue lace negligee, was ready to join him at breakfast.

To eat breakfast leisurely and not on the run! They were both ill at ease when the waiter, with his immaculate white coat and tight-fitting trousers, brought in the breakfast table and set it up in the living room. Helen felt curiously wicked and immoral in those moments. But once he bowed himself out they fell to enjoying the luxury of hot rolls and delicious coffee. Helen no longer felt like a courtesan! Now she was the Competent Young Matron, pouring coffee, so-solitious about cream and sugar and marmalade.

Breakfast over, Walter lit his first cigarette of the day and opened the newspapers to read the headlines aloud to Helen, who curled up at his feet, her cheek against his knee—only to jump up when the waiter came in again to remove the table.

At ten o'clock he tore himself away until twelve, when they met again for lunch. As soon as he had gone Helen slowly and luxuriously began to dress. At eleven she stepped out of the hotel and then she started her queer wandering that was so fascinating to her. It was a combination of shopping and browsing. Helen discovered art galleries and exhibitions. She had no time for matinees nor did she miss them. After lunching with Walter and more shopping—he had to buy her a solitary and a diamond wrist watch—Helen took a Fifth Avenue bus. Sometimes she went downtown to Washington Square and wandered fascinatedly about unfamiliar, narrow streets swarming with children.

At other times Helen went along Riverside Drive. She went to Grant's Tomb and the Museum of the American Indian and Billings' Castle. She blundered into the Cloisters and spent a breathless morning looking at the statues, later that day she took Walter there and he was equally overwhelmed. She always got back from her jaunts in time to meet Walter for dinner and to tell him of her adventures. Then they went to the theater, where they now had orchestra seats and could enjoy themselves without fear.

Helen never met anyone she knew on her solitary rambles. She found she didn't miss anyone's intrusion. To be alone with herself and her thoughts of Walter was a luxury she had never known and she reveled in it; it was a joy second only to being with Walter.

Two weeks to the day after their marriage, Irene phoned Helen. "I'm giving a luncheon for you on Wednesday at the Vanderbilt. At one, if that's agreeable."

It was more a command than an invitation but Helen was too flustered to say anything beyond murmur an acceptance and her thanks.

Walter was half pleased, half regretful that their idyll was being shattered by outsiders. "Irene knows nice people," he assured her. "You'll enjoy it. I don't want anyone. I don't want any friends. I want only you!"

He kissed her. "You're a queer girl, Helen. I never knew anyone like you before. You're so different from other girls. But that's why I love you."

"Me too like that!" They never tired of kissing each other. Her lips drew him as irresistibly as a magnet draws steel. Reluctantly she pulled herself away to face the real problem at hand.

"What shall I wear, Walter?" she asked anxiously.

"I don't know. What does anyone wear? An afternoon shift, I'd say. Why not call Irene up and ask her?"

"Silly! She'd think I was a moron calling her up to ask her what I ought to wear at her luncheon."

She giggled. "Besides she hasn't seen my clothes. Do you think the tan suit and the summer furs would be suitable?"

"I should think so. You look wonderful in it. Get yourself some flowers or I'll get 'em for you. Sweet peas?"

"Yes, I think sweet peas will be lovely."

"Okay, I might as well get the habit of sending flowers. No time like the present. I want to be an attentive husband," he grinned. "You're a marvelous husband," she declared fervently.

Helen started to dress for the luncheon at ten o'clock, as soon, in fact, as Walter left. Although she already had had a shower, she now took a perfumed bath. Except for an occasional memory of that awful night when he took her there, Helen had scarcely thought about Walter's sisters. She wondered now whether they'd all be at Irene's luncheon. Helen's heart pounded loudly. The prospect of facing all four of them—possibly five of them if their mother were also there—was not a happy one.

She reached the Vanderbilt promptly at one and had to wait twenty minutes until Irene drove up in Anastasia's limousine with the liveried chauffeur, pressed into service by each of the girls whenever they wanted to make an especial impression. Irene was alone.

Helen breathed a sigh of relief only to be again thrown into a state of perturbation by Irene's friends, all of whom gathered in the next five minutes.

Irene wore a startling dress of black and white and a small turban that half covered one eye. She looked exotic, arresting. Not that Helen could have worn such a costume! The others all wore extreme clothes, drooping earrings, weird, unexpected color combinations that on women less superbly groomed would have been ridiculous and freakish.

Everyone was kind and yet Helen felt that same nameless misery creep over her at Irene's manner that she felt at the hands of the exquisite salespeople in the swank shops. Helen groped for a word to describe it and even when she found it—"patronizing"—there was small comfort in the achievement.

"Your little sister-in-law. Well, well. A sweet child! Are you a New York girl?"

"Sort of—" Helen fluttered. "I was born in Brooklyn."

"Brooklyn? Really! Do people actually live and beget children in Brooklyn?"

"How long are you married?" another asked. "Two weeks today! Oh, lord, how horribly new you must feel! I remember how I felt as a two-weeks' old bride!" she shuddered.

Caught a Cold?

To help end it sooner, rub throat and chest with VICKS VAPORUB

"Yes. Here's the hotel. Will you come in?"
"No thanks. I must fly home and dress for dinner. Good-bye."
"Good-bye, Irene, and thanks again."

Helen stumbled out of the car. Not until she was in her own suite, hidden from everyone, did she sink trembling into a chair.

She was in a panic. Oh, what a frost she was! She was tongue-tied, stupid. Everyone else was so smart, so blasé. She'd disgrace Walter. And now that dinner at the Terhune's!

Tears of misery and fright rose to her eyes. If only she could hide away somewhere. She felt so miserable that she undressed and crawled under the covers in their big double bed. She cried softly into the pillow until, weary and exhausted, she fell asleep.

When she awoke it was six o'clock and with a bound she was out of bed. Walter would be home in half an hour. He must never know she was a social failure—at least she wouldn't tell him. He'd find out soon enough from them. But she wouldn't snivel. She'd say she enjoyed it.

I was a howling success! Helen said grimly aloud. "I was just the life of the party!"

Even a visit to Tante Freda

Havenmayer's that night, where Walter was treated like a god and Helen only as something slightly less, couldn't restore Helen's equanimity. Every time she thought of the dinner Friday night she was panic-stricken.

Millions Near, But Libby Holman Must Still "Sing for Her Supper"

Though a settlement of the estate of the late Smith Reynolds, North Carolina tobacco scion who died mysteriously, allocates millions to Libby Holman and her son, she must still sing for a living. Payment of the wealth is tied up by litigation, and she's appearing in nightclubs and movie theaters to support herself. These exclusive candid camera photos—only ones ever made of her performing—show her as she is now.

WINDSOR, Ont. — Joseph St. Louis, father of 14 children, boasted on his 80th birthday that he has never attended a theatre and never been sick or tasted medicine; has never gambled.

HOME MAKING HELPS

Recently we ran an article discussing the joys and the comparatively simple methods of making things for the house. There is such joy in creating a certain little something for the house, be it a lamp shade, hat stand or a needle point chair cover.

Something charming in this line was accomplished by a young bride who decorated parchment shades with colorful but narrow bands at the top and bottom, and then proceeded to tack on tiny artificial but life-like nosegays of wild field flowers. She used these in her simple living room with excellent effect.

Another idea is to buy some cellophane braid and sew it into a shade, whipping it onto the frame. Or what about cutting little slots at the top of an unglazed parchment shade and running ribbon through, finishing with a neat bow?

Thus one can change the ribbon at will, according to alterations in the room. This idea is splendid for gifts, as it is easy to match up the color scheme of the room of a friend. If you don't want to use fabric ribbon, then why not colored cellophane ribbon to give that different look?

Novel Decoration

Another clever woman had some tree decoration icicles left over from last Christmas. And so she festooned these on a lamp shade after having strung them on knotted cord. Still another idea, credited to a brilliant decorator, is to get some plain wooden buttons, string them on red wool and then zig-zag them onto a shade, whipping the edges of the shade with the red wool.

There are never too many screens in any house, so why not make your own? Plain wooden screens are very inexpensive and you can experiment with one screen again and again until you get what you are after. We have seen some lovely screens decorated with photo murals of favorite snapshots that looked like real money, although the cost was trifling.

HOPKINTON, Mass.—Michael T. Maloney, 82, says he can lick any man his size. Maloney, once exhibited as the smallest man in the world, is 40 inches tall and weighs 65 pounds. He runs a small farm here.
